
PACIFIC CAUCUS

4

Priority Goals

It is with great enthusiasm that I present my first annual report for the Pacific Caucus for the year 2023. This year our primary focus was on refreshing and revitalising the caucus to better serve the needs of our Pacific communities.

A part of this revitalisation was the development of 4 priority areas for the caucus. To also help achieve this goal, efforts were made to reconnect with Pacific members and to expand our network. An expression of interest was disseminated, aiming to spread the word. We are feeling rather encouraged by the interest and conversations we are garnering in this space. This is a promising start towards building a more robust and engaged caucus for our Pacific community.

Advocacy for Pacific Peoples

We commit to being strong advocates for Pacific peoples and their health needs. This includes promotion policies and initiatives that address the specific concerns of our community.

Capacity Building

We will support the development of our members through offering opportunities to upskill and seek further education, thereby contributing to the strengthening of our Pacific workforce.

Creating a Supportive Network

We seek to establish a diverse network of Pacific public health workers, offering peer mentorship, guidance, and a platform for mutual support within the sector

Empowering Young Leaders

We seek to actively work towards the development and empowerment of our young people, nurturing them to become future leaders in the Pacific health sector.

The Pacific caucus is on an exciting trajectory towards achieving its objectives. While the journey has just begun, the commitment and passion of our members are evident, and we look forward to the positive impact we will collectively make this coming year.
